ALTERNATIVE DISPUTES RESOLUTION MECHANISM (A Value Added Course) offered by

VIT-AP School of Law (VSL)

Disputes are an unavoidable part of any relationship or organization. However, where there is dispute there must also be a mechanism for resolution of the same. To begin with, disputes can be resolved either through litigation i.e., in court of law or through alternative dispute resolution mechanism. Dispute resolution through Courts or litigation in India is considered expensive, time consuming and full of complexities. On the other hand, ADR is a system whereby disputants resolve their disputes with minimum outside help. The mandate of the alternative dispute resolution mechanism promotes a wide array of dispute resolution mechanisms relevant to today's legal scenario. Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) mechanism has emerged to provide speedy justice as it the process of settling disputes without courts intervention or litigation. While Courts and Judiciary are recognized as pillars of India's legal system, ADR is gradually becoming a preferred method of resolving commercial and personal disputes. The mechanism is considered as time bound, cost effective and an informal system of resolution of disputes. Based on this background the course aims to provide an insight on the concept and process of Arbitration, Conciliation, Mediation, Negotiation and other Alternative Dispute Resolution Mechanisms. And also helps develop the understanding on the key differences between the formal legal system - Adversarial system and ADR Mechanisms.
