Consumer Protection Law (A Value Added Course)

offered by

VIT-AP School of Law (VSL)

Each one of us is a consumer in one way or another. It is important for us to be an aware and informed consumer of goods and services available to us in the market. Very few consumers are aware of their rights given to them by the Consumer Protection Act. Consumer protection law has been adopted by the Indian government during 1986 in order to protect the interest of the consumer. Legal and policy changes have been introduced ever since the Act came into force. Along with that the Indian legal framework has also undergone a substantial change to comply with the international norms. The subject has received tremendous importance among the contemporary legal fraternity in India. This is considered as an important subject which should be taught to all the students and even citizens of the country. In this backdrop this course is aim to introduce the existing law and practice relating to consumer protection and much needed awareness among the Indian society.
